Purchasing and Procurement Overview

When procuring and contracting for goods and services, school districts must follow various state laws and federal regulations that govern procurement, contracting, and bidding in the public sector. In addition to state laws, many local education agencies have policies that introduce another layer of rules on the procurement and contracting process. While state laws and local rules dictate many elements of this process, local boards of education still have discretion on some of the issues concerning contracting. School budgets are tight and time is limited, which makes well-formed purchasing decisions essential for school business officials. This session will cover the legal aspects and basics of performing the purchasing and procurement functions and general accepted practices and procedures in the purchasing process.

Ethics and Vendor Supply Relationships and Management

Public purchasing and the expenditure of public funds require that ethical standards be incorporated into every aspect of the school district's purchasing function. Purchasing directors, CSFOs, and other business office personnel face the difficult task of developing good vendor relations and encouraging vendor competition while avoiding even the appearance of favoritism or other ethical misconduct. In an effort to get the job done successfully and on time, one may be tempted to circumvent policies, procedures, and laws, or make their own liberal "legal" interpretations of existing policies. Such activity, although well intentioned, will cause ethical problems. A good vendor/contractor relationship contains integrity, trust, honesty, openness, fairness, and reliability on the parts of both parties. Relationships containing these elements can bring about many benefits for school district.

This course will focus on vendor/contractor relationships and the code of ethics for the school district combining educational and business ethics. Topics will include a definition of business ethics, sources of ethical values, organizational and/or community ethical standards, Alabama Ethics Law, ethical guidelines for decision makings, and how to cope with unethical situations.

Financial Management Strategies and Data Driven Decision Making

Financial management is essential for all areas of school business including those with or without an accounting background. Now more than ever, school business officials must synchronize the actions of business units and the goals of the school district so that the educational resources are expended in the most efficient manner possible, especially in the classroom.
